

An Exchange Of Farmers

Great Britain Sending One Hundred to New South Africa
Great Britain is making an exchange of farmers with South Africa. Last summer a delegation of 100 British farmers left for the Cape Verde to England and studied the methods and conditions. (In their report they recommended a large number of British farmers to be sent to South Africa, sending a copy to the British Government. The British Government "graciously declined to accept" the plan, thus expressing the hope that Africa of Britain would remain British.)

Unfortunately in this case and here, not completed and the South African National Farmers Union is strongly in opposition to the plan. The British Government from Great Britain and the Irish Free State. The British Government has not yet decided whether to accept the plan.
